U.S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR Office of Workers' Compensation Programs

DECISION OF THE HEARING REPRESENTATIVE

In the matter of the claim for compensation under Title 5, U.S. Code 8101 et seq of employed by the case file number 6 The hearing was held on in Atlanta, Georgia.)6-
The issue is whether or not the Office met its burden of proof to terminate compensation
The Department of Treasury employed the claimant, as a Branch Chief in She timely filed a claim for an injury at work on , when she tripped and fell over a sidewalk. The claim was developed by the Office to accept right knee strain, bilateral knee and hand abrasions, lumbar strain, and a right shoulder strain that had resolved by The claimant returned to restricted duties on She subsequently stopped work on and has not returned Appropriate wage-loss compensation and medical benefits were paid by the Office	es
The Office referred the claimant for a second opinion medical examination with M.D., or The Office subsequently determined that there existed a conflict in medical opinion regarding the nature and extent of any remaining injury-related medical residuals and disability. The claimant was referred for examination by a referee medic specialist,	al
The claimant was examined by Dr on On , the Office terminated the claimant's entitlement to wage-loss compensation and medical benefits based upon Dr opinion that the claimant did not suffer from any continuing injury-related medial residuals or disability. The claimant disagreed with the Office decision a her attorney, Paul Felser, requested an oral hearing. The hearing was held on Atlanta, Georgia.	.nd n
By decision dated the hearing representative determined that Dr opinion was not sufficiently rationalized. The Office decision of was set aside and the case was remanded for further development of the medical evidence. The hearing representative directed the Office to obtain supplemental reasoned opinion from D explaining whether the claimant had any ongoing work-related right knee condition myofascial pain syndrome causally related to the work injury	r
The claimant had documented pre-existing right knee problems for which she had surgery and degenerative joint disease. The claimant was diagnosed with common variable immunodeficiency (CVID) in April, 1999.

division of the claimant's employing establishment). Dr. was not asked if he presently performed such examinations on a regular basis, and it was not clarified as to what time period was referred to by "in the past." Dr. additionally noted that such examinations were a very minor portion of what he had done and that most of the independent medical exams of fitness for duty type of examinations were done in the automobile liability area. Mr. Felser reiterated prior arguments relating to Dr. Buckingham's certifications

Mr Felser noted that he would be submitting additional documentation from Dr original treating orthopaedic surgeon, who disagreed with the opinions of Dr Mr Felser indicated that Dr was of the opinion that the work injury caused a permanent exacerbation of a pre-existing condition. He noted that in Dr second deposition testimony the doctor opined that the injury caused an exacerbation of the claimant's symptoms but no aggravation of the underlying condition.

Medical evidence in addition to Dr. following the hearing deposition of (

was received

M.D., a treating orthopaedic surgeon, letter from An noted that prior to the subject work injury the claimant had a previous medial meniscus repair and patella drilling for avascular necrosis in the 80s and 90s respectively. He indicated the claimant attained full recovery following those treatments and had no restrictions prior to the MRI indicated that the posterior noted an Dr injury of cruciate ligament (PCL) was torn but the anterior cruciate ligament (ACL) was intact. He noted stated the claimant had another MRI in. the films had been destroyed. Dr stated that after a review of indicated the PCL was intact and the ACL was attenuated Dr. the claimant's history, physical examination, and objective findings, it seemed within reasonable medical certainty that the claimant had a previously existing problem of her right knee prior to ; noted that while he did not believe the record indicated that the her injury in 1999. Dr. fall was the direct cause of her knee problem, he did feel that it was reasonable that the injury aggravated the pre-existing condition and that the aggravation continued to contribute to the claimant's overall impairment as far as her physical limitations of limited stair climbing

A letter from MD, a treating allergy and immunology specialist, stated that Dr never contacted him regarding the claimant's case and condition There is no requirement that a referee physician consult with any of the claimant's physicians for any reason

I have reviewed the evidence of record and find that the Office did not meet its burden of proof to terminate compensation as there remains an unresolved conflict in the medical evidence

The Office may terminate or suspend compensation benefits only under certain specified circumstances: when a claimant refuses an offer of suitable employment; when the Office establishes that the disability for which compensation has been paid has ceased or is no longer causally related to the employment injury; when a claimant refuses to assign or prosecute an action in his own name as required by the Secretary under section 8131(b) of the Act; and under section 8123 of the Act when a claimant fails to undergo or obstructs a scheduled medical examination ¹

Once the Office accepts a claim, it has the burden of justifying termination or modification of compensation benefits. After it has determined that an employee has disability causally related to his or her federal employment, the Office may not terminate compensation without establishing that the disability has ceased or that it is no longer related to the employment ²

When a case is referred to an impartial medical specialist for the purpose of resolving a conflict in medical opinion evidence, the opinion of such specialist, if sufficiently well-rationalized and based on a proper medical background, must be given special weight. The Board has required exclusion of medical reports if the physician selected for referee examination is regularly involved in performing fitness for duty examinations for the claimant's employing agency While such physicians may not be used as medical referees, they may be used as second opinion specialists.

Where the Office secures an opinion from an impartial medical specialist for the purpose of resolving a conflict in medical opinion and the opinion requires further clarification or elaboration, the Office has the responsibility to secure a supplemental report from the specialist for the purpose of correcting the defect in the original report. However, when the impartial medical specialist's statement of clarification or elaboration is not forthcoming to the Office, or if the physician is unable to clarify or elaborate on the original report, or if the physician's report is vague, speculative or lacks rationale, the Office must refer the employee to another impartial specialist for a rationalized medical opinion on the issue in question ⁵

The evidence is insufficient to establish that Dr Buckingham cannot be considered as a referee physician as he is regularly involved in performing fitness for duty examinations for the claimant's employing agency for the reasons noted above report of the second opinion specialist, Dr. noted that the The claimant's current complaints of right knee pain appeared to be predominately the result of her osteonecrosis and degenerative changes which resulted from her previous meniscal injuries and subsequent surgical procedures. Dr. also stated it was his impression that the myofascial pain syndrome that had been described may have been initiated by the claimant's injury, however ongoing symptoms of that severity were not likely to be the result of the described opined that the claimant had no residuals from the ! work injury. Dr was not specifically asked to provide an opinion as to whether the work injury injury. Dr. caused or contributed to the diagnosed myofascial pain syndrome. He did not explain or provide medical reasoning in support of his opinions that the work injury "may have initiated" that condition and that the continuing symptoms did not likely result from the work injury

William C. Austin, 39 ECAB ____ (1988).

²Adina D. Blanco, 39 ECAB ___(1988)

³ Louis G. Psyras, 39 ECAB (1987).

⁴ FECA Procedure Manual, 2-0810-13(a)(1).

⁵ Talmadge Miller, 47 ECAB 132 (1996)

Dr , the r	eferee physician, wa	s the first C	Office physician specifically	y asked to address the issue of wl	ether or not the clai	mant had m	yofascial pain syndrome ca	ausally related to the work incident of	•	$\mathbf{D}_{\mathbf{I}}$	appeared to accep	ot the claimant's diagnosis of myofascia	l pain syndrome. H	e cited the	claimant's pain inventories	and a depression index test a	nd stated her pain co	omplaints w	ere most likely a manifesta	ition of depression He did not	explain the reasons	the work in	njury did not cause or contr	ribute to the condition Dr	n essentially fur	nctioned as	a second opinion physician	n with respect to caused or contributed to the myofascial pain syndro	ome As noted, Dr.	, the se	econd opinion specialist, w	as not specifically requested t	o render an opinion	regarding a	causal relationship between	en that condition and the work injury, all	hough, as noted abo	ve, he did s	suggest that the work injury	y may have initiated that condition

Dr sopinion otherwise remains insufficiently rationalized to resolve the conflict in the medical evidence or to merit special weight. The Office did not specifically ask Dr to provide reasoned explanation for the cause of the claimant's right knee instability or to address the issue of whether the claimant had a torn posterior cruciate ligament Dr supplemental report did not address those issues

There now exists a conflict in the medical evidence between the claimant's treating physicians and Dr as to whether or not the claimant's mvofascial pain syndrome was caused or contributed to by the work injury of nd, if so, whether the claimant continues to have any related medical residuals or disability. The claimant's treating physical medicine and rehabilitation specialist, MD, has opined that the claimant suffers from disabling myofascial pain syndrome causally related to the accepted work injury.

As noted, Dr. did not provide sufficient clarifying rationale regarding the cause of the claimant's right knee instability or whether the claimant had a torn posterior cruciate ligament Dr letter of opined it was reasonable that the injury aggravated the claimant's pre-existing right knee condition and that the aggravation continued to contribute to the claimant's overall impairment as far as her physical limitations of limited stair climbing. The medical evidence has not completely addressed the issue of whether or not the work injury aggravated the claimant's pre-existing right knee condition.

On remand, the Office should refer the claimant, along with the case record, appropriate questions, and a statement of accepted facts, for an impartial medical examination by a Board-certified specialist to resolve the conflict of medical opinion as to whether or not the claimant's myofascial pain syndrome was caused or contributed to by the accepted work injury and whether or not the work injury aggravated the claimant's pre-existing right knee conditions. The referee physician should explain whether or not the claimant has any continuing medical residuals or disability related to any condition caused or contributed to by the , work injury. The referee should provide full medical reasoning in support of his or her opinions.

The Office should take actions as appropriate following any additional development deemed necessary after review of the specialist's report. As the Office improperly terminated the claimant's wage-loss compensation and medical benefits the claimant is entitled to reinstatement of compensation pending resolution of the existing conflict of medical opinion

Accordingly, the decision of the Office dated , is hereby set aside and the case record is remanded to the district office for actions consistent with this decision.

DATED: JAN 2 5 2006

WASHINGTON, D.C.

For Director, Office of Workers' Compensation Programs